

Teaching Inclusively Questions to Consider

1. How can I draw upon the diversity of student experiences to bring multiple perspectives to the course content?
2. Where might I include new perspectives on key issues?
3. How can I make my instructional examples more inclusive?
4. How can I incorporate different information, sources, and formats (readings, films, blogs, speakers, current events, experiential activities, field work)?
5. How might I vary my teaching/facilitation style?
6. Where can I incorporate diverse authors/inventors/theorists?
7. How can I incorporate group work to enhance participation and learning?
8. How might my own biases impact teaching and learning in my course?
