Inside the “Black Box” of Sell-Side Financial Analysts

Funding from the Montague-CTE Scholars Program allowed me to hire two teams of undergraduate students to participate in the research process with me. The student teams gathered critical data for two research projects that both resulted in papers currently being peer-reviewed at top scholarly journals. The research these students assisted with also allowed me to bring insights into my classroom teaching experience. It was especially gratifying to see the research these students helped with be covered extensively in important financial media outlets.
